Woods I Class Making Toys for Charity

Reported by paula_mueller@ipspd.org on 12/1/09

Students in the Woods I class at Neuqua Valley have turned into little elves this holiday season! Students are making tic-tac-toe boards and building block sets to donate to the Alliance for the Children charity. (See pictures below!)

Since 2000, Neuqua Valley High School has participated in this voluntary program. With the inception of the Advisory program, this initiative evolved into a monumental powerhouse of giving and 'kids helping kids'. In its 11th year, the drive concentrates on collecting new toys and clothing which is then given to the children in Chicagoland and also concentrating extensively on the Appalachian Mountain areas of West Virginia, Kentucky, and Virginia. The Alliance has had a tremendous impact on students in those regions and the evidence is in their academic scores and their behavior.

For more information on the Alliance for the Children, please contact Paula Mueller at paula_mueller@ipspd.org.
